

The “Living Together Research Group”

at the University of Oslo (UiO) was established in 2014, the year of Roland Barthes’ 100th anniversary celebration.

The group consists of scholars from the University of Oslo and the University of Art and Design, Linz.

Each member of the group has a specific research field and a work package in the project, that is, related to one of the 5 topics and one of the key concepts that the project elaborates and builds on from the basis of Roland Barthes’s How to live together manuscripts:

Kjersti Bale (“Desert”), Hilde Bondevik (“Sanatorium”), Robert Pfaller (Idiorrhythmics and interpassivity), Christian Refsum (“City”), Johan Schimanski (“Island”) and the research group leader Knut Stene-Johansen (“Home”).
